komm zu Tisch!!

i had a great year
to pay my respects all the time of neglect and his grave. i had always been a good boy, but now i was filling i should have done it all over again

good music at last, and also to meal was no plan, no certainty. Just the need yes and it takes time to overcome our way in spite of all that has happened around us with such a lack of orientation.

like driving in rain today, you so very fast, but we need the time to get to know each other. We are pretty tired, but we have to go on. the way to the village, I have to stop to be noted about the damage, about the damage from the war.

Anorak [eskim.]

der; -s, -s:

1. Kajakjacke der Eskimos
2. Jacke aus windundurchlässigem Material mit angearbeiteter Kapuze Ohne geeignete Kleidung wäre der Mensch in der Arktis verloren. Das Volk der Inuit begegnete dieser Herausforderung mit der Entwicklung genial konstruierter Kleidungsstücke wie Anorak und Parka. Fehlende technische Ausrüstung glichen die Inuit dabei mit ihrem großen Geschick aus.

Der Anorak ist eine glänzende Erfindung, um seinen Träger, den kajakfahrenden Jäger, vor Nässe zu schützen. Er wurde überwiegend aus Tierdärmen, aber manchmal auch aus Fischhaut gefertigt. Zusammen mit dem Kajak bildete der Anorak eine wasserdichte Einheit, die sogar bei einer Kenterung das Boot trocken hielt. Unverzüglich dafür war die ständige Imprägnierung mit Fischtran.

Die Kleiderherstellung oblag den Frauen, die damit einen wichtigen Beitrag zum Überleben unter den Bedingungen der Arktis leisteten. Die Anfertigung der Kleidung hatte nicht nur funktionelle Aspekte, sondern darüberhinaus auch spirituelle und symbolische Bedeutung. Dem Glauben der Inuit zufolge lebten die Tiere in den verarbeiteten Häuten weiter und übertrugen ihre Fähigkeiten auf den Träger der Kleidung.

Die Näherrin hatte eine wichtige Funktion, denn sie unterstützte durch ihre Tätigkeit die Versöhnung der Menschen mit den erlegten Tieren. Aus diesem Grund unterlag die Kleiderherstellung einer Reihe ganz bestimmter Vorschriften.

Road to life

Accelerate down the road of intelligence You better make the right choices If you're going to be a traveller You can survive the night
On the road to Life
The pavement is full of potholes and bumps
And you may get yourself in trouble If you're poor when you navigate So in your ignorance you perish Hey that's the breaks
That always happens to a novice Everybody is a traveller Searching For the Light
On the road to Life

(Lyrics: me phi me)

①PARIS

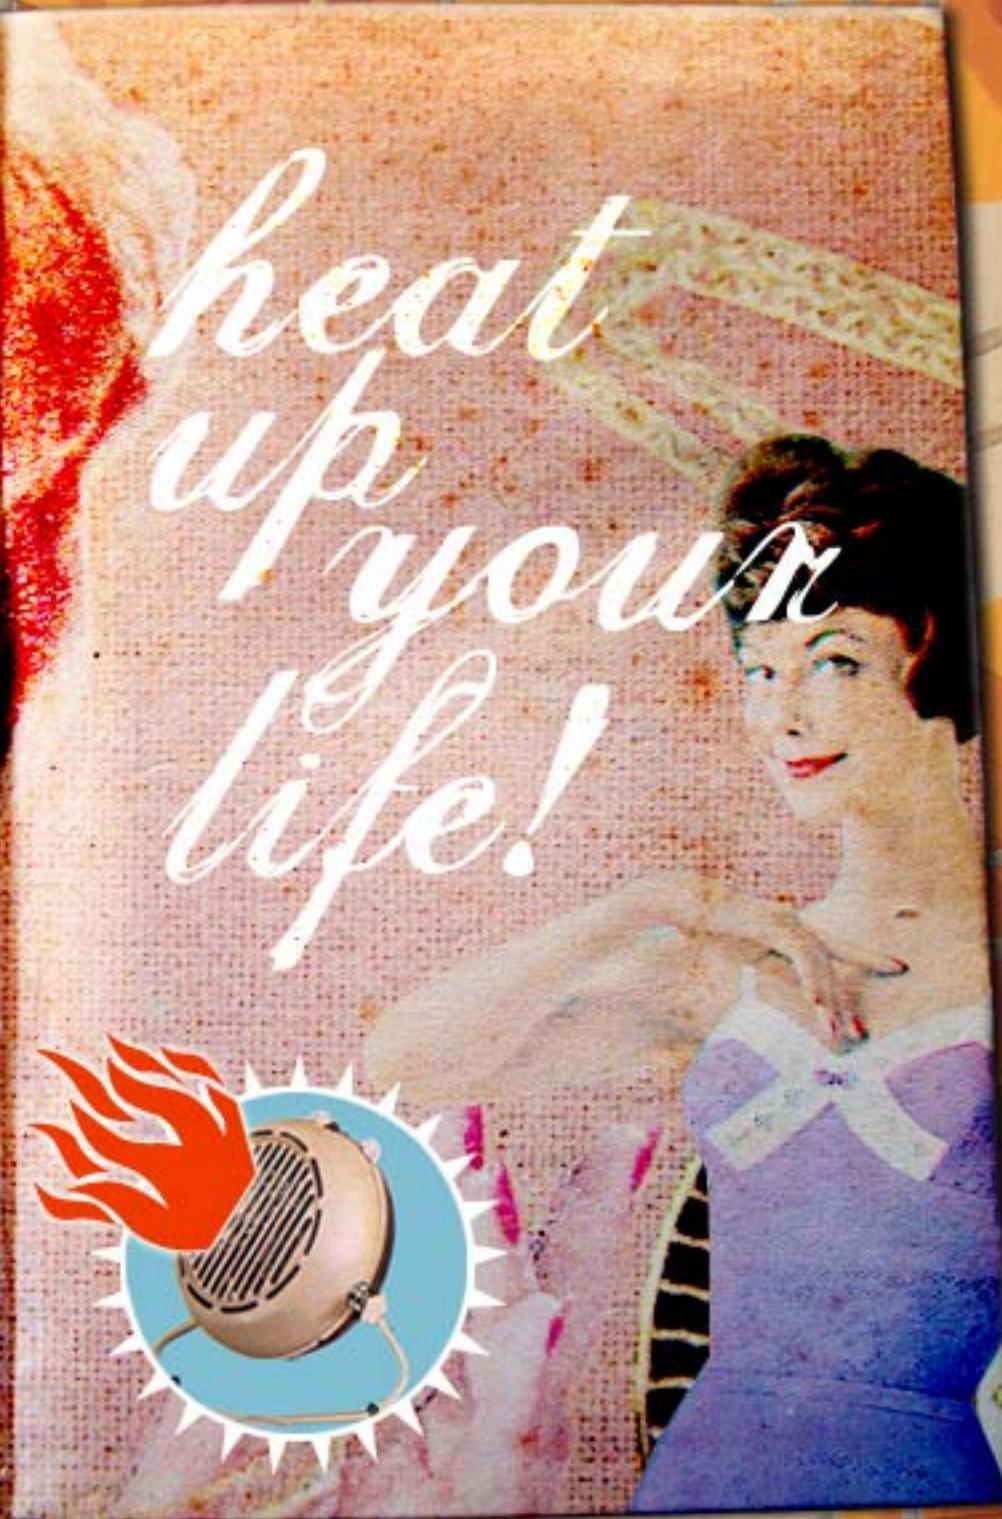

Fest für's Leben

Gedämpftes Licht, Kerzen, leise Soultöne, Holzmöbel im Vierziger-Jahre-Design und vergilbte Fotos. Schriftsteller verhandeln diskret mit ihren Agenten, Tänzerinnen der Pariser Oper kommen zum Souper, ein älteres amerikanisches Pärchen hat seinen Stammtisch inklusive Extraplätze für den Dackel. Der ideale Platz für ein romantisches Rendezvous.

give some, IMO, great brushes. I have some of my own brushes but practically know how to use them so I've decided to release them. And to do so I've signed to PixelSquid. And to go with it I've made another brush set. And to go with that I've added the PS6 Brushes section.

In addition to the PS6 Brushes section, PSP Brushes, for users of PSP, I've found some really interesting looking brushes for PSP. They can be found in the Photoshop section if you zero in on the PSP category.

PSP brushes exist in two forms: PS6 brushes to adapt for PSP and new ones I'm making out that PSP brushes cannot adapt to. I am promised to make a tutorial for PSP users by Banks Jeni.
It's still not ready, but it's almost there... Banks has one new set of brushes, and I have one new set of brushes. maybe the brushes will be links have been updated and brush sets (incentives).
PSP brushes crystallize you think - enough?

So then I'll state it here:
I will not back, but I will go now.
Banks has one new set, add the layout (same brushes, same size), I think I'll probably make more brushes will possibly update and make and all. Let's check
